ALABAMA COUNTY TO PRESERVE JAIL REMNANT WHERE MLK WAS HELD Jefferson County commissioners unanimously approved a resolution Thursday to memorialize and preserve an area on the seventh floor of the county courthouse that used to be a jail. Much of the floor is now used for storage and mechanical equipment. Sheriff Mark Pettway said the civil rights leader was held on the floor in 1967, when he served three days for contempt after losing an appeal on his conviction for demonstrating without a permit years earlier.

- ALABAMA COUNTY TO PRESERVE JAIL REMNANT WHERE MLK WAS HELD Jefferson County commissioners unanimously approved a resolution Thursday to memorialize and preserve an area on the seventh floor of the county courthouse that used to be a jail. A small area including two pale-green cells, an isolation chamber, a shower and mechanical equipment are all that remain from the old jail. The county doesn't know whether King was held in that exact section or another section that has since been removed. But commission member Lashunda Roberts-Scales said it was important to preserve what's left of the jail regardless since King was there. The last time he was arrested, the last time he was housed in a jail, it was in the county jail here in Jefferson County, said Pettway.

Much of the floor is now used for storage and mechanical equipment. Sheriff Mark Pettway said the civil rights leader was held on the floor in 1967, when he served three days for contempt after losing an appeal on his conviction for demonstrating without a permit years earlier.
